LH3 Hash

Weekly Bull Shit -

Run report for run 2219 – Fingers’s New Wood Heater Christening Run

Yes, Fingers has a “new” hot box in his shed and to-night was its official Hash inauguration. It doesn’t look anything like Bendover’s burnt out 22 year old boiler that he had on his trailer ready to go to the tip because it’s all painted and sparkling and on its own little pedestal.

It seems to be fashionable in LH3 to heater swap as new runner Pensioner Garry has scored Pash’s discarded furnace and, even before Scary spotted it, he was quick to scavenge an RHS scrap left over from Fingers’s renovation for his own restoration project. I’m sure everyone will be excited to see what Garry can create to eclipse tonight’s experience.

Many wanted to stay and admire the inferno that was raging within the satin black stove, nevertheless the run commenced bang on 6:30. Following arrows with “F”s the pack made its way to the first check. With the effects of the winter solstice one could sense certain apathy with the pack tonight and enthusiasm was lacking; each hasher secretly thinking “I’ll pretend I’m looking while Sprocket can do the real work”. Some elderly members even voiced a demand that the younger members pull their weight and search the checks; this posed the question “who are the younger members?”

Willow Lane, then the dog shit track to Mount Leslie; choice of four directions – Pash (with 35 000 lumens stuck to his head) wanders at least 6 ½ metres up the road and calls “its not here” so Sprocket checks all other avenues and reports back that he couldn’t find it. Focus turned to the ability of the walking Low Head Lighthouse to find a simple arrow with an “F” and further investigation found said arrow in the exact vicinity that Captain

LED had scanned 5 minutes earlier. Tracking across the main road and down towards Lomond View; this is where the conversation bit of the brain took control over arrow finding senses and the trail was lost. Sprocket spread out and found the arrows that had not been spotted; these led past Woollies, 2 Bob’s, Holliman Drive area to the On Home somewhere along the way - just as light rain started. Fingers has set an enjoyable short run for the shortest day of the year, give or take 10 seconds.

*note – 2016 Southern Hemisphere Solstice occurred 20th June at 22:34.

ON ON:

With an inferno inside the shed and a blazing fire pot one couldn't ask to be warmer. Hash Pash who actually made it to the ON Home sign tonight has set his office up next to the new heater and is quickly recovering from hypothermia as he calls we know who has not paid. Who is going to be the last to pay tonight Tyles is not here. Bendover is gob-smacked he cannot believe it's the heater he was going to take to the tip, a Haher says should have put it on Gum Tree. Blakey called the circle while Rickshaw guzzled his economy sized goon bag.

Raffle:

Goblet's weekly prize bonanza – Drawn by Fingers

Pash – Chocolates

Pash – Booby Prize

Pash – Wine (Garry)

Pash – Guinness 6 pack (Sheila)

Pash – Boags 6 pack (Sprocket)

Fingers Fingers Pash, Pash Fingers Fingers whatever is going on – every ticket Fingers pulls is Pash's.

What a shemozzle!!!!!! We haven't seen this much kerfuffle since Commander Corruption, aka Tiles, scooped the prize pool.

On Downs:

Fingers – Made more of an effort to set the run than the pack did to run it.

Blakey – Road rage – he's dangerous when he's premenstrual.

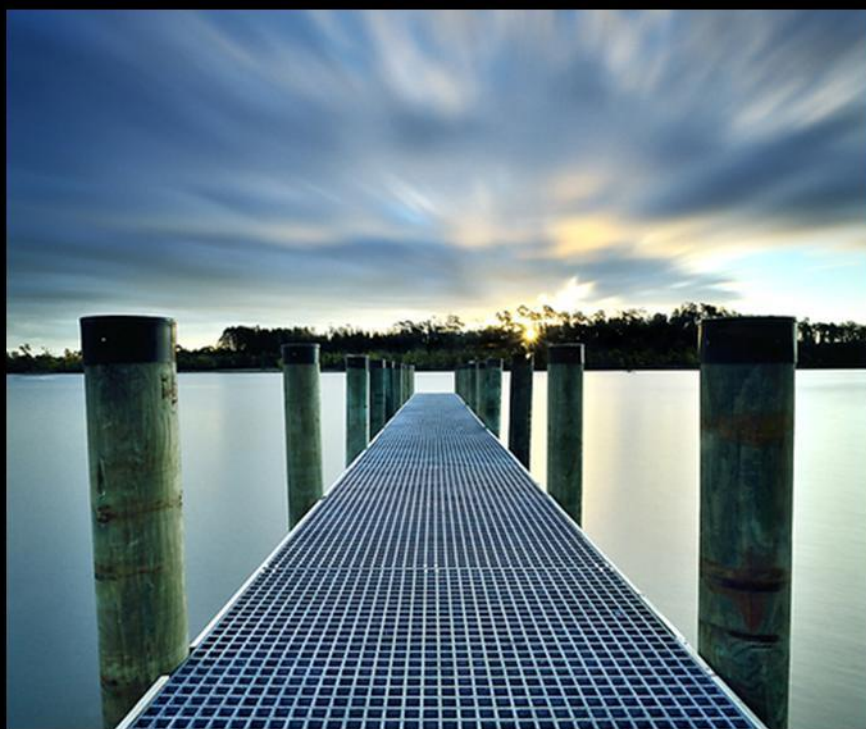

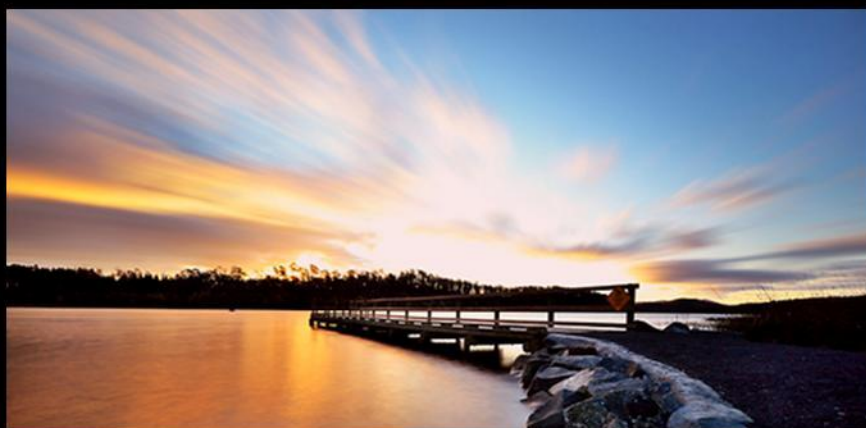

Pash Overlooked the arrows even with aircraft landing light nailed to his skull.

Garry – 1100 runs – he borrowed 1095 of them from Boong.

Blakey – 200 runs – seems longer than that.
